MARTINI..... £7.50

Plymouth Gin, Noilly Prat. We like our Martini dry. How do you like yours?

Dry, wet, dirty, Churchill? With a twist or olive? We'll do it any way you like.

The origins of this quintessential tippie are murky at best. While some claim it evolved from the Martinez - a concoction of gin, sweet vermouth, lemon and Maraschino - others argue it simply derives from the fortified wine brand itself.

Wherever it appeared from, we're just glad it did. Sophisticated, uncomplicated and bound to get you merry.

NEGRONI..... £7.50

Plymouth Gin, Campari, Cocchi di Torino. Most commonly reported as being realised in 1919 in Florence, Italy as a way to give the Americano - Campari, sweet vermouth and soda - a boozier kick. Broody and bitter, this simple 1:1:1 ratio drink should be approached with reverence. A slow sipper to be appreciated for the purity and harmony of its ingredients.

GIMLET..... £7.50

Plymouth Gin & lime cordial. From 1867 onwards, all British Naval ships were required to carry rations of fresh lime juice to prevent scurvy. The only issue was - it spoiled, fast.

Around that time Launchlin Rose patented a way to preserve the juices without alcohol - and Rose's Lime Cordial was born. The Naval Officers, though, liked their health kick with a heavy dose of gin. And the Gimlet as we know it today came into existence.
